

Aziz Nathoo

Aziz Nathoo is a Muslim Interfaith and Peace teacher and preacher hailing from East Africa. He serves on the charitable arm of The Aga Khan Foundation, The Mayors Philadelphia's Council of Interfaith Advisors, The United Nations, The Poor Peoples Campaign, Amnesty International, Montco Multifaith Council, The Dialogue Institute, Interfaith Philadelphia, Interfaith Peace March, AJC Muslim-Jewish Dialogue and various dialogue, interfaith and peace & justice organizations and initiatives.

His philosophy is that the major source of discord among faith traditions is due to a clash of ignorance about each other and not due to a clash of civilizations. He focuses on replacing ignorance with wisdom and establishing avenues of respectful and civil dialogue and promoting pluralism to combat extremism and discrimination. He also works with various Refugee relief organizations and the Charter for Compassion.

By Profession he is a businessman. He has a degree in Islamic Studies from the University of Texas and pursued his MBA at Boston College. Aziz is a Muslim & Interfaith preacher and professor, teaching at various colleges and civil institutions and various houses of worship.
